Story of the Creative 2013

Art Exhibition, New York

New York City, USA, 05.08.2013, 12:26 Time

USPA NEWS - This exquisite collection of work features a diverse range of mediums, styles, influences, and inspirations. The work displayed will include sculpture, works on paper in one of the most exquisite venues in New York City.

Without question, the act of creation has always been a historical marker; a civilization's culture is judged first and foremost by the art left behind. Just as archaeologists offer hypotheses about ancient societies based on cave paintings, historians of the future will base their conjectures about us on the contemporary art, fashion and music that is happening at this very moment. Creators around the world "a vital force for social change, technological advancement, and innovative thought" have evolved dramatically over the past decade. The digital age is molding the creative landscape before our eyes. The work showcased in The Story of the Creative speaks to the diversity of voices so crucial to our international cultural dialogue.

The See.Me "The Story of the Creative" International exhibition represents artists from over 100 different nations and will be exhibited in New York City at the See.Me exhibition space 26-19 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, NY
From the 25th July to September 10th, 2013

See.Me is an international community of over 700,000 artists, photographers, fashion creators, musicians and more.
